City of Manassas Survey on Parks, Recreation and Culture

City of Manassas, VA . . . A new online survey asks what types of programs, facilities, and services residents of the City of Manassas want to see in their parks and from cultural facilities, and where priorities should be placed. The survey also assesses current usage of parks, recreation and cultural facilities, and specific community needs. The City invites the community to provide feedback and input by completing the survey at www.manassassurvey.org/open.

The online survey is part of a larger effort to update the existing capital improvements plan, and will help the City tailor the plan to reflect the community's desires and needs. Last fall focus groups met to provide input for parks planning. Another survey is being sent to a random sampling of between 3,000 and 3,500 Manassas households, and responses from these residents will comprise the statistically valid sample. Both surveys will provide critical information in determining community values, satisfaction levels, needs, priorities, and demographics for the City's long-term planning efforts.

The project is led by GreenPlay, LLC while RRC Associates is completing the survey and data work. Visit www.manassascity.org/parksplan to learn more about the Parks, Recreation and Culture plan.
